TIGERS WIN PENNANT

TAKE DECIDING GAME FROM CENTRAL AVENUE IN JUNIOR LEAGUE

By winning the deciding game from Central avenue playground, the Tigers gained the pennant offered to the Junior league. They started out early, scoring one in the first inning, and kept hammering away at Central until they had run the score up to 8 to 2. Both teams made eight hits, but the Tigers' hits came when hits meant runs. Both teams played good ball in the field and showed a marked improvement over the form displayed in the earlier part of the season.

Standing of Clubs

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Tigers	6	1	.856
Central	4	3	.571
Pacific	3	4	.428
Lions	1	6	.143

During the remainder of the week the other teams will play out the contest for second place. The Pacific avenue team's winning streak remained unbroken. They met and beat the Lions on Monday by a score of 17-13. Pacific's speedy pitcher, Acosta, was hit harder than usual by the Lions, but the pitchers for the Lions—Wilcox, Van Osdall and Clark—working in turn, were hit even harder than Acosta, and the game was a hitting contest from start to finish.

Merritt Brown caught a splendid game for the Lions. He is one of the strongest catchers in the league. His brother, Roland, acting as captain for the Lions, is making a very strong team out of the good material at his disposal. Dale Manning meanwhile is leading the Pacific team with good judgment. Myron Powers for the Tigers has managed to get them into the winning position—losing only one game.

Hastings Bidwell, superintendent of the Central avenue playground, says that the boys under his jurisdiction have showed that they have benefited greatly by the supervision of the past two months. "At first," said Bidwell to a representative of the Glendale Evening News, "the boys were a little disorganized and inclined to run things their own way. They soon learned obedience, however, and are exhibiting a spirit of unity that promises much for the future.

"The work of the summer playgrounds will now be taken up by the school leagues and the lessons learned during the past two months should prove valuable. The boys showed a great aptitude for handball and that, too, I hope will be kept up. Some of the boys—Paul Terry, Milton Brown, Reed and Nichol—showed first-class qualities on the baseball field.

"I think the city ought to have a large central playground, supervised by a male and also by a female superintendent. In this way much more could be accomplished than has been possible this season."

WHY CONDUCT CONTEST

The Evening News subscription contest is not being conducted for the benefit of any contest agency, or for the purpose of bringing into the hands of the publisher money without giving value received. Every publisher knows that it costs good hard cash to build up a subscription list. Solicitors are paid from $2 to $5 per day, and often a day's work does not mean many additional names added to the list.

For sake of argument, we will imagine that the average cost of obtaining new subscriptions and collecting old subscriptions is 25 per cent; that would mean it costs the publisher $25 for every $100 turned in by a solicitor-collector. The bulk of the business should be new to make it profitable to the publisher. To pay 25 per cent for collecting subscription money that should really come to the office without any expense, makes a burden of expense that retards the advancement of any publication.

The contestant who receives a $50 prize should turn in $200 worth of business and a good share of that should be new business if the publisher is to get a fair deal in the affair. A $75 prize should bring in $300 of mostly new business. A $300 prize should represent $1200 received and an $800 prize should mean that a contestant does $3200 worth of business, and of course a large per cent of that should be new business.

By reading the above explanation contestants will readily see the amount of business it would be fair for them to do to rightfully win the various prizes. Contestants not receiving a prize will be paid 10 per cent on money turned in for new subscriptions.

The position of the contestants will be published until Saturday of this week. After that date the standing will not be published until the close of the contest, September 6, the Tuesday following Saturday, September 4, when the judges complete their count. The position occupied by the contestants today at 1:30 is as follows:

Following is the position of the candidates at 1:30 today:

1—Morse Preeman.
2—Miss Cora Hickman.
3—Mrs. J. C. May.
4—Miss Ruth Wright.
5—Newton McGillis.
6—Mrs. Albert Pearce.
7—Miss Virginia Graham.

WORK ON THE STREETS

CITY ENGINEER AND CITY MANAGER BUSY MAKING NEW AND REPAIRING OLD STREETS

City Engineer Lynch is busy these days with various parts of street work. In particular he has the task of seeing that the work being done on the contract given Peter L. Ferry on Canada boulevard from Wabasso way to the north line of tract 250, is according to specifications. The street is being constructed with a base of five inches of decomposed granite, two and a half inches of crushed rock and an oiled surface. The sidewalks in this piece of street work are of cement; there are cement curbs and gutters. When completed this section will have a set of lamp-posts of the latest pattern.

The Putnam Stone Construction company is putting in a steel and concrete bridge in Verdugo park. The same company is also putting in 2200 linear feet of channel protection in the same spot. This work consists of driving piles, in some places one row, in others three rows being needed; cleaning out the channel and installing a protection of barbed wire to break the force of the water and save the banks.

Peter L. Ferry was also awarded the contract for the improvement of Ivy street. When the necessary technicalities have been complied with the work will be proceeded with.

Second street will come for bids within two weeks. The improvements will be put in between Central and Columbus avenues.

The lower section of Canada boulevard from Wabasso way to Verdugo road will also come up for bids within three weeks. All this work comes under the city engineer's department and is being proceeded with as rapidly as is consistent with permanent construction.

Under the department of the city manager comes the work of repairing the streets. City Manager Watson has a large and active program which will keep two crews hard at work during the next two months.

One of the city manager's crews is working on Glendale avenue between Colorado street and the south limits of the city. The work being done there is regrading and rolling. Work has just been finished rolling and oiling Broadway from Verdugo road to Adams street. A small crew is busy repairing holes in Belmont street.

CARRIER SERVICE

On account of the Evening News having adopted the plan of publishing the latest news of the world in each issue, it is very important that subscribers receive their papers as soon as possible after the same come from the press.

Hereafter unless in case of accident, the papers will be ready for the carrier boys at exactly 3 o'clock or before. It is expected that all carrier boys will be on time and that hereafter deliveries will be made promptly. Following out the new plan, the Evening News should be in the hands of all subscribers before 4 o'clock.

Boys who are required to remain after school to make extra time will not be employed by the Evening News the coming year. The practice of requiring boys to make up lost time after school may be a good thing for the boy, but such a practice in the instance of carrier boys is not fair to the Evening News patrons. In the future the Evening News management will endeavor to be prompt in having the papers ready for the boys on time, and then the boys will be expected to be prompt in getting the papers delivered to the subscribers. Report complaints to the Evening News office—Sunset 132 or Home 2401.

VETERANS CELEBRATE

N. P. BANKS POST HONORS COMRADE PRATT ON SEVENTY-THIRD BIRTHDAY

With lunch baskets and boxes that were filled with many tempting viands and delicacies, members of N. P. Banks Post, No. 170, and Corps, No. 67, boarded two large auto trucks early Friday morning and left for the Pratt ranch, three miles northwest of Burbank.

Several weeks ago members of these organizations learned that Mr. Pratt would reach his seventy-third milestone Saturday, August 21, but in order to more completely surprise Comrade Pratt, decided to celebrate Friday. When the merry, happy party reached the ranch Mr. Pratt was seen out in his large alfalfa fields making hay, while Mrs. Pratt and daughter, Mrs. Jens Askeland, were out on the veranda waving a large silk flag as a welcome to all.

The surprise was complete in every detail. As many hands make light work, it took but a short time to arrange long tables on the veranda, which soon were laden with the contents of the baskets and boxes, and at which the fifty or more guests were seated later. A huge birthday cake surmounted by seventy-three red, white and blue tapers, over which a small silk flag waved, centered the festal board and added a certain degree of pleasure. All joined in singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." At the close of the repast it was learned that Friday was also the birthday anniversary of Maj. J. J. Weiler, who thus celebrated his seventy-sixth anniversary. This fact became apparent in the happy felicitous remarks by Major Weiler following the discussion of the tempting dinner. Others who made congratulatory remarks and talks were Rev. C. R. Norton, Mrs. Susie Ogier, Miss Cora Hickman, Mrs. Thomas Atkinson, Mrs. H. S. West, Comrade T. M. Barrett and Post Commander George W. Sanford, who also read an original poem pertinent to the happy occasion.

Comrade Pratt, whose face beamed with happiness, replied in his usual cheery manner. The occasion was ideal, the day all that could be desired, the happiness and good cheer characteristic of all such gatherings when N. P. Banks Post and Corps are hosts and guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt have but recently taken possession of their new ranch home, located in the midst of a vast alfalfa field. An inspection of the ranch, its full equipment of farm appurtenances and fine well-bred stock was a pleasant feature of the day.

The occasion will long be remembered by not only Mr. and Mrs. Pratt, the genial host and hostess, but by the many guests who were happy in thus affording so much pleasure and happiness to Comrade Pratt, whose loyalty to friends, the Post and Corps is manifested on all occasions.

FOOTHILL CLUB

The Foothill club held their regular monthly meeting on Friday afternoon at the home of Miss E. D. Williams, 903 Dryden street, where they were most charmingly entertained by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Menzo Williams.

The entertainment provided was very unique, Dr. Towers of Occidental boulevard, Los Angeles, giving a lecture on Japan, illustrating his talk with colored slides. As Dr. Towers has traveled extensively in that country and had himself taken the views which he showed, he was able to make the lecture very entertaining and instructive for all and the members and guests gave their interested attention throughout.

A number of guests were present, including Dr. and Mrs. Towers, Mrs. Reigle, Mrs. Vorhees, Miss Dorcas Avery, all of Los Angeles; Mrs. E. K. Barnes, Miss Clara Smith, Miss Katherine Clemons and Miss Eleanor Clemons of Pasadena; Mrs. H. Peterson and Miss Birdie Peterson of Casa Verdugo, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jones and daughter, Miss Emma Jones, of Scranton, Pa. Members of the club present were Mesdames Priest, Mitchell, Richter, Barnes, Williams, McMillan, Stone and Kelley.

SISTERHOOD MEETS

After a brief business session the gathering directed its attention to sociability and with the aid of the many gentlemen who were present managed to have a very pleasant party.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

EVENTS IN GREAT WAR WHICH TOOK PLACE TUESDAY, AUGUST 24, 1914

(Special Correspondence)

It may be interesting to those who thought the war would be over before twelve months had passed to compare conditions a year ago with those that prevail at the present moment on the continent of Europe. At that time the Germans were confident of being in Paris before many days, although the valiant resistence of the Belgians had upset their original plans. Namur was being besieged and Italy was carefully preserving her neutrality. What will another year bring forth?

Germans renew offensive in North France, but Paris reports French, English and Belgians are holding them in check. German report is that 10,000 French have been taken prisoners and Longwy captured.

Belgium denies Namur has fallen, saying blowing up of one fort caused report.

Zeppelin drops bombs on Antwerp, killing seven, and is brought down by artillery fire near city.

Invading Russian army defeated by Germans at Stolluponen, cavalry contributing to German success.

Russia reports two great armies advancing over seventy-mile front into East Prussia.

Premier Asquith tells parliament that the war probably will strain the empire's resources and entail many sacrifices.

Three thousand Russians leave Vladivostock to join in attack of the Japanese on Tsing-Tao.

Servia announces clearing of her soil of Austrian troops by battle at Sabac.

Premier Salandra assures Italian deputies that mobilization is not imminent.

MARRIAGE IN ST. MARK'S

In the presence of a small company of friends, Marshall Laird of Los Angeles was married to Dorothy Groom of the same city in St. Mark's Episcopal church Saturday night by the Rev. C. Irving Mills, D. D., rector. After the wedding a reception was held in honor of the bride and bridegroom at the home of Mrs. Bannock, 816 Lomita. Bride and bridegroom are artists. Mr. Laird is noted for his skillful retouching of old paintings. The bride was dressed in a handsome gown of old lace and wore a picture hat. IMPROVING UNCLE SAM'S NAVAL SCHOOL

To read some of the recent comments on the work and habits of the naval cadets at Annapolis, it might be thought that the whole naval training system was worthless and that the young men who are being fitted for the United States navy are a set of unlicked cubs with bad manners and a lamentable disregard of truth. Anything more untrue could not be imagined. Under the present system the Annapolis academy has turned out year after year naval officers who have been a credit to the country.

It is quite possible that the system that produced men like Admiral Sampson, Admiral Dewey, Admiral Schley, Fighting Bob Evans and scores of others less known, but as faithtul and as efficient in their work as the quiet Gridley, whose work at Manila bay is still remembered, is distasteful to some of the hyper-saintly crowd that follows Secretary Daniels and his entourage; but the country got good and faithful service out of such men in its hour of need and the system that produced them cannot be far out of the straight way.

Secretary Daniels has been "improving" the Annapolis academy and among other things has unearthed a scandal. He discovered that some of the students had been "cribbing" their examinations, especially in languages. The secretary is making inquiries as to how examinations are conducted elsewhere and expects to prevent the modern language tests from being "cribbed" and to stop the upper-class drill masters from drilling under-class men in "matters along the same lines as the coming exam."

One wonders where Secretary Daniels has been brought up that he does not know that since the days of the University of Babylon students have been unable to resist at times the chance of getting through an examination by the help of a crib. It is a sin that hurts the sinner more than anyone else and has usually been dealt with scholastically. To make a cry to high heaven and rouse the nation over the pecadilloes of a body of students is surely unworthy of the navy department and it is by no means calculated to benefit the naval academy.

It might be well to permit the Annapolis authorities to deal with the practice of "hazing" which, as everyone knows, has been, in some form or other, a custom in all schools. A secretary of the navy has surely other more important functions than that of an under-tutor and may with a good grace allow the teaching faculty to rule their students as they have always done. Discipline in this respect is usually observed and there is an unwritten law for dealing with hazing.

WHAT GERMANY GOT IN BELGIUM

It is becoming more manifest every day that Germany is not likely to give up Belgium. Her officials, all of whom are military, are hard at work compelling 3,000,000 people to work, manufacturing ammunition to furnish the kaiser's men with the wherewithal to exterminate their own countrymen. The port of Antwerp, occupied by the Germans, and the new port on the channel, Zeebrugge, which the Germans have converted into a formidable naval base; Ostend, another important harbor held by the kaiser's army, are all valuable captures which the Germans are turning to good account for their own purposes.

How significant is the commercial and industrial aspect of the territory occupied by the Germans can be easily recognized. Belgium has valuable coal mines, which the Belgians are being compelled to work for the supply of the German fleet and army. The famous arms factories of Liege are in their hands, as are also the smelter works of La Vielle Montagne, the steel works of John Cockerill in Seraing, and the Fabrique d'Armes in Herstal, with the affiliated industries operated by and for the Germans.

The fact that Germany has seized all these factories and mines has been one cause of the allies' shortage of ammunition. The tremendous stocks of raw material of all kinds seized by the Germans in Belgium have been consequently lost to the allies and thereby they have been proportionately weakened.

In short, all the wealth that Belgium has produced during past years, along with all the tools of production and the human labor necessary for their handling, is now in the hands of the Germans. There is every indication that these things, along with the country that produced them, will remain in that powerful grasp.

HIGH SCHOOL LIBRARIES

It is interesting to learn that in California in 1915 there were 241 high school libraries owning more than 340,000 books besides magazines, newspapers and pamphlets. That means that there is an average of six books per pupil.

In 1903 the first librarian was appointed in a California high school; now there are twenty-seven, four of them assistants in the high schools of Los Angeles. The libraries themselves have increased in size and usefulness very rapidly and have become as necessary an adjunct of the modern high school as the university libraries are to those institutions.

There is no doubt about the value of these libraries. To a teacher in any line of work a good library available to the students is a notable assistance. The pupils can be directed to read along certain lines that are co-ordinate with the class study and in this way a vast deal of ground can be covered and students built up into taking wide and comprehensive views of the subjects they are studying.

This can best be seen, perhaps, in the study of history. What students get from textbooks is the merest dry bones of history. History must be read from a hundred points of view before one is able to get the proper perspective on the events of any country, or the trend of an epoch or even the character of a historical personage. Here a good library can be of the utmost value. Not only can the student get the other man's point of view, but he also is able to form the valuable habit of looking at both sides of every question.

Day schools, evening and summer schools are using the libraries and their installation everywhere should be encouraged.

FRENCH DECLARE BRITISH MUST GET BUSY IF GERMANS ARE TO BE BEATEN

William Phillip Simms, the United Press staff correspondent, writing from Paris some days ago, stated that the French, dissatisfied with the assistance the British have given in the matter of fighting the Germans, are urging the islanders to get a move on them; to send more men to the continent and to caution their workingmen to cease from striking, otherwise the Germans will never be beaten.

It is alleged in France that the British are building two strong lines of entrenchments about London, as though they were persuaded that the Germans would ere long invade their land. The French say that if the British would devote more pains to defending Calais and other channel ports, that it would be of more service to them. The French are holding 500 miles of territory on their lines, the British only about thirty.

It is also stated that Great Britain has 3,000,000 soldiers at home—Kitchener's army—but they are drilling with wooden guns or using the drill staffs that were seen in Ulster when that section was preparing to fight the home-rulers.

There seems to be no doubt that France and England will continue to stand together without faltering to the end, but the French would like to see a little more activity on the part of their allies. Such is Simms' statement founded on conversations he has had with various parties in France.

Replying to all this criticism, E. L. Keen, another United Press correspondent, stationed in England, says that the British admit that some of this criticism may seem justified, but they point out that the British are doing 100 times as much as their treaty with France calls on them to do. They also state that they have swept the seas of the German cruiser fleet; that they have captured all Germany's colonies, and that during all the year of the war they have held Germany's formidable fleet shut up in the Kiel canal and when any portion of it has ventured out, it has been promptly dealt with and many vessels sunk; that British submarines are even now operating with pronounced success in the Baltic.

They also point to the large expeditionary force that is now battering its way to Constantinople along with the French troops and to the very serious work done by the British and still being done by them in shelling the Turkish forts in the Dardanelles and aiding the troops.

It is also stated that now that the British workmen know of the empire's danger they have ceased striking. The army armed with wooden guns, says Keen, is an exaggeration. As a matter of fact, Britain is supplying all her men with rifles and Kitchener's work is so well done that the men go direct from the training camp to the trenches. It is also stated that the British front in Flanders now extends to a distance of 100 miles and that there are nearly 1,000,000 British troops there.

As to the entrenchment round London, it is said that it would be folly on the part of the British not to prepare for emergencies. Paris is fortified in similar fashion and while there may never be an invasion of England, yet warfare of these days is so full of surprises that it would be the height of folly to delay putting the capital in a state of defense. Meantime the British will continue their efforts to throw additional numbers into France to guard the way to the channel.

It is believed in England that the twenty-six new national arsenals that have been started during the past month and the 100,000 workers who have offered their services in connection with them will shortly turn out all the ammunition necessary for the war.

OLD-TIME MANNERS

In a work entitled "Youth's Behavior," published in 1706, there is this injunction to young gentlemen: "Put off thy cap or hat to persons of desert as are churchmen, justices and the like, turning the cap or hat to thy selfwards; making a reverence, mowing thyself more or less according to the custom of the better bred."

In the midst of remarks which indicate the utmost refinement we come suddenly upon such directions as this:

" 'Tis not manners as soon as you are set at table to bawl out, 'I eat none of this, I eat none of that, I care for no rabbit; I love nothing that tastes of pepper, nutmeg, onions,' " etc.

After stating that "some have been so refined in foreign parts that they will neither be covered, nor sit with their backs to the picture of an eminent person," the writer goes on to remark that "there are some who eat with that eagerness and impatience, they eat themselves out of breath and will pant like a broken-winded horse, but these are not to be indured."

He also warns his pupil thus:

"When you are talking to anyone do not continually punch him in the side, as some people do; who, after every sentence keep asking the person they are conversing with, 'Did I not tell you so?' 'What say you, sir?' and in the meantime they are every moment jogging and thrusting him with their elbows, which cannot be considered as a mark of respect."

SCHOOL SAVINGS BANKS AND THRIFT

There is excuse for some expression of sentiment because of the fact that Belgium, now lying prostrate, originated the idea of educating the children to thrift by the introduction of a savings bank system into its schools, particularly at a time when the United States bureau of education is properly drawing satisfaction from the spread of Belgium's idea on this side of the Atlantic. From a report just issued by this bureau it appears that 217,000 American pupils now have on deposit $1,500,000 in school savings banks. In the United States these institutions found their first foothold through the activity of a native of Belgium in Long Island City, N. Y. Since then the system has spread over the Empire state, and its school savings banks are said to be the most successful in the country. The system prospers, however, in Pittsburg and other Pennsylvania communities, in New Jersey and elsewhere. In Grand Rapids, Mich., for instance, the pupils have deposited since the establishment of the school banks, $75,000, and have drawn out only $10,000.

The bulletin of the bureau recommends that there be instituted a working arrangement between the school and the postal savings system. Very often, perhaps usually, it is now the case that the school savings are deposited in private savings institutions. The postal savings banks now receive deposits from all over ten years. The school savings banks by beginning with children when they are younger, prepare them for the thrift which enables them to be patrons of regular banks later on. Experience has taught teachers and other observers that the saving habit can be formed as easily and as surely as the spending habit, and that when once the children realize that they are accumulating money it becomes a pleasure rather than a sacrifice to them to put their pennies in the school savings banks.

Hand in hand with the encouragement of thrift among the school children should unquestionably go enlightening education as to the real value and proper purpose of saving. We believe that the children are being taught to place money getting in its right relation to other pursuits and money possession in its right relation to other acquirements. It is of importance to the nation that its children shall be industrious, frugal, thrifty, provident; they can be all of these and still be free from avariciousness, greediness, sordidness or selfishness. What the nation wants is well-bred and well-trained children that it may be blessed with a well-rounded and righteous and independent citizenry.—Christian Science Monitor.

EXPLAINS ITALY'S BREACH WITH TURKEY

(Special Correspondence)

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Italy's declaration of war upon Turkey is due principally to her failure against Austria-Hungary. Italy must gain compensation elsewhere for the blood and treasure being uselessly expended against Austria, and Turkey is the sacrifice.

Italy now risks losing her new Tripoli colony recently taken from the Mohammedans. This is doubtless why the Italians delayed entering the war. But confronted on the Isonzo and Alpine fronts by deadlocks the Rome government was compelled to risk the possible loss of Tripoli. Turkey has enough soldiers for a Tripolitan campaign, but it is doubtful whether sufficient ammunition can be spared at present.

If Bulgaria should enter the war on the side of the Teutons, Turkey's munitions would be replenished. Then the chances are even that Tripoli will be retaken by the Turks. Italy may decline to participate in the Gallipoli campaign, or at most, send only a small expeditionary force to the Dardanelles. Then she may decide to concentrate most of these forces along the Smyrna coast, where her chief interests are centered. A Smyrna offensive by Italy would decide the question of munitions and contribute indirectly toward the Gallipoli campaign, but would not be so hopeful as the direct campaign on Constantinople.

CANADIAN REUNION UNDER THE SYCAMORES

The popular all-Southern-California picnic reunion of the Canadians will be held in Sycamore grove, Los Angeles, on Saturday, August 28th. This will be an afternoon reunion, with basket picnic supper at 5 o'clock. Each one should bring cup and spoon with a bountiful supper. Coffee will be served free to all who buy the badge. The informal program will follow the dinner while all are around the tables. This reunion is for all Canadians from all the provinces from Prince Edward's Island and New Foundland to the Pacific coast and to the farthest north.

Let all Canadians be loyal to the old home that day and all come together to renew old acquaintances and to make new friends. Under the grand old sycamores is the place for such a meeting and all Canadians and their friends will be welcome.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

A large group of Glendale White Ribboners were met on the pleasant and shady lawn of Mrs. D. J. Graham, 235 East Third street, last Friday afternoon in their regular meeting. A pleasing feature of the occasion was the presence of Mrs. D. F. Hendershot from Crescent City in the north part of the state. Mrs. Hendershot was one of the charter members and the first president of the present union in Glendale, organized in 1905. In a short talk she showed the difference between temperance conditions here and in her own town, where until recently they have had eighteen saloons. Even the saloonkeepers thought the number too large and helped reduce them to eleven, which they think a very good deed. By the effective work of the better element the county went dry at the last election and they are hoping, with us, to soon see a dry California.

There were other visitors from Tropico and one from an eastern state.

Mrs. Smart, the president, who is also state superintendent of world missionary work, gave an interesting and instructive address. She said in part:

"My topic, 'Our Missionary Work,' is a big subject and I can but touch it at this time. Few people, even among our own members, realize that our organization does distinctive missionary work, as so considered, but we do both home and foreign work. Nearly $11,000 was expended last year in our home field in work among the Indians, the colored people, foreign born people, soldiers and sailors, and organizing in new territory. Of especial notice is the stationary missionary at Ellis Island, N. Y., where immigrants land. A woman has been employed there for years who speaks seven languages and gives out literature in twenty or more languages. Her opportunities for helping the stranger in a strange land are immense.

"Our foreign work embraces the world. It was on this sunset coast in 1883 that Frances Willard received her inspiration for a world's W. C. T. U. In presenting the matter to her associates she said that we must have a common objective point, a thread of uniform purpose on which to string pearls, whose soft, pure light will belt the world like a spiritual equator, before the youngest here is gray. This has been done. The first white ribbon missionary went out in 1885 and made a trip around the world, being gone eight years. Many others have gone since, two of whom are now living in Glendale—Mrs. Clara Parrish-Wright and Mrs. Kara Smart-Root. Our work has now organizations in fifty nations of the earth, with a membership of half a million women, besides 300,000 children in our Loyal Temperance Legion. Nine world's conventions have been held and at the last one in Brooklyn in 1913 there were thirty-five countries represented, with a voting delegation of 415. This has God wrought among the nations and the world will ere long throw off the thralldom of the alcoholic curse. The history of this movement through the past thirty years is as interesting and thrilling as a novel, but space will not permit. The world's president is Rosalind, the Countess of Carlisle of England, who has given in the past two years 750 pounds to the work of sending out missionaries. The cry for help of workers and money comes from all parts of the globe."

The Glendale union made a generous gift at this meeting "for God and home and every land."

HANGED BY A GHOST

An old volume of the Quarterly Review mentions a crime discovered in a most extraordinary way in Australia in the year 1830, of which a public record is preserved and which figures with full details in the journals of that period.

The confidential steward of a very wealthy settler near Sydney stated that his master had suddenly been called to England on important business and that during his absence the whole of his immense property would be in his exclusive care.

Some weeks after an acquaintance of the absentee settler, riding through his grounds, was astonished to perceive him sitting upon a stile. He strode forward to speak, when the figure turned from him, with a look of intense sorrow, and walked to the edge of a pond, where it mysteriously disappeared.

On the morrow he brought a number of men to the water to drag it, and the body of the man supposed to be on his way to England was brought up. The steward was arrested, brought to trial and, frightened at the story of his master's ghost, confessed the crime, stating that he did the murder at the very stile on which his master's ghost had appeared. He was duly executed.—Case and Comment.

SUNLAND AND LITTLELANDS

H. L. Powers of Los Angeles and Mrs. F. Adams and daughter of Phoenix, Ariz., returned to the city the first of the week after visiting a few days at the beautiful country home of Dr. E. B. Spates on Los Angeles street.

Mrs. W. C. Miles returned this week from Strawberry Park, near Gardena, where she had been visiting her daughter, Mrs. E. S. Merwin. Mr. Miles went to Strawberry Park Tuesday and accompanied his wife home.

Miss Alice A. Smellie transacted business in Los Angeles and visited relatives at Sawtelle the first of this week.

Mrs. Allan Nevlin of Los Angeles is renting one of the Graham cottages on Hill street, Sunland. Mrs. Graham told a representative of this paper that this month was the first month they had had a vacant cottage for the past three years.

J. N. Wetmore and family visited friends in Burbank Thursday. While in Burbank they visited the Atherton Villa, which is used by the Baptist association as a home for retired ministers.

Dr. E. B. Spates, who owns a beautiful country home on Los Angeles street, spent Saturday and Sunday with friends at San Diego.

Mrs. J. H. Forrtnier of San Ysidro has returned home after a prolonged visit in Los Angeles.

Groceryman-Homebuilder

J. V. Correa, residing on San Ysidro, is an enthusiastic booster for the valley—and further than boosting, he is constructing a modern five-room bungalow on his acre, which will be a decided improvement. The foundations and porches use the native rock, while the upper parts are of wood construction.

Mr. Correa is doing all of the building without the assistance of skilled mechanics and he is proving that a groceryman can display as much ability with construction as the majority of carpenters.

Asthma brought Mr. Correa into the valley and now that he is completely well he is prone to leave. As soon as the new home is complete, and that day won't be so very far distant, the Correa family from Los Angeles will add to the local population.

Mr. Correa was formerly in the wholesale grocery business in the city, coming there from similar employment in Denver. The family's original home was Jacksonville, Ills.

Uncle Sam has been wondering what has become of all the informers. From the treasury department recently came the answer, "We're paying them too much money."

California has a monopoly on borax says the department of the interior. In 1914 the state produced 62,400 short tons, valued at $1,464,000, an increase over 1913 of more than 7 per cent.

West Virginia produced 71,707,626 tons of coal in 1914, worth about $1 a ton at the mine. No other state did this well.
